

2021 Online Boutique Opens November 8 Pick-up Nov. 13, 10 a.m. - 2 p.m.

Our crafters have once again created nearly 1,000 hand-made items for your holiday shopping pleasure.

Unfortunately, once again due to our lingering pandemic, the Holiday Boutique will be almost completely online. The “shop” opens at 9 a.m. November 8. You can shop around the clock until 9 p.m. November 12.

Items will be packaged for your pick-up at La Colonia Community Center from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturday, November 13. Solana Beach Community Centers remain closed to inside gatherings. However, during the pick-up hours, we will be able to set up an outdoor display and sell items that aren’t snatched up online! Hurray!

What’s for sale? Holiday poinsettias — preorder online for Nov. 27 pick-up (or use the form on page 5). Plus holiday decor and ornaments galore, of course. Handmade quilts and keychains, totes and handbags, placemats and napkins, aprons and baby bibs, knitted hats and crocheted clothes hangers, plant stands and hand-turned wooden bowls. . .

More bespoke items than we could ever picture here, but here is a small sampling.

(Sorry, folks, previews of boutique wares aren’t available online. You may find an “error” page if you try to sneak a peek.)

Our Growing Pollinator Habitat

In April, 2021, Mayor Lesa Heebner and Solana Beach City Council signed the Mayors' Monarch Pledge to help make Solana Beach friendly to Western monarchs and other pollinators. Since then . . .

April 23 — First pollinator garden established with 75 milkweed and nectar plants in our first neighborhood, La Colonia de Eden Gardens

April 24 — More than 90 Solana Beach families collected 350 free, native narrow-leaf milkweed plants and 1,430 native milkweed seeds for their home gardens. Residents donated more than $1,700 to plant more pollinator habitat

May - present — Native milkweed and nectar plants added to the SeaWeeders Community Garden in a southern section of the Coastal Rail Trail

June 21-27 — Residents participated in a community Monarch Count to mark national Pollinator Awareness Week

October 19 — Nissos CA, the City's landscape contractor, donated labor to plant nearly 100 native milkweed and nectar plants in the north community garden section of the Coastal Rail Trail and the Fire Station native garden

Additional pollinator patches are being planned. Potential sites include Larrick Reservoir and near the City's Public Works yard off Highland Drive.

Help fund more habitat! Purchase Monarch Butterflies by Ann Hobbie, packaged with milkweed, nasturtium and California poppy seeds during the Holiday Boutique (cost $20).
